The 38th Annual CSUN

HIMS recently participated in the CSUN Assistive Technology Conference, where we had an exhibition to showcase our latest assistive technology products and solutions.

The conference, which was held from 13-17 March in Anaheim, CA, in the US, provided us with an opportunity to showcase our commitment to improving the lives of people with disabilities. HIMS officially introduced our latest product, SensePlayer OCR, to the North American market. It was well received by attendees.

We had the opportunity to connect with potential customers, partners, and other professionals in the field, and we are pleased with the positive feedback that we received from them. The conference was an excellent platform for us to showcase our products and highlight our expertise in the assistive technology field. We look forward to continuing to work with you to create a more inclusive society.
